

English is SO tricky!

Can you explain what each of the repeated words means in the sentences below?

1. Lawyers take a case when they see a case. They know the case name because the letters are in upper case.

Case has three meanings in this sentence. What are they?

Sometimes English sentences have the same word or same sound repeated in them many times. And sometimes each time the sound is made it means something different.

What do these sentences mean?

2. The debate topic for today is 'That pigs should fly'. I think that that 'that' proposition is not a good debate topic.

Which thing does the person think is not good?

3. A ballet teacher told a student; 'Please buy some new ballet shoes and two tutu too.'

In your own words, what does the ballet teacher want?

4. I have a friend called Candice. We call her just Can. Can can can-can. Can you?

Who can do what?

5. A sign writer was employed at a restaurant called the Pig and Whistle. He was asked to leave a spaces between Pig and 'and' and 'and' and Whistle.

Write the sign according to these instructions.
